Malizole Mdlekeza (FIA FASSA CERA) is a qualified South African actuary (Fellow of the Actuarial Society of South Africa, and Fellow of the Institute & Faculty of Actuaries (UK)) specialising in investments and pensions. Drawing from practical industry experience which spans over 13 years across various areas of South African financial services, he founded MDM Actuaries, which focuses on issues related to the South African economic, institutional investment & pensions landscape.

He is a member (and the immediate former chairman) of the Actuarial Society of South Africa's (ASSA) Alternative Investments Forum. This is a forum of 20+ actuaries and actuarial professionals focusing on various issues centred around the suitability of institutional alternative investments (such as infrastructure and private equity) where he drove thought leadership and fostered key professional relationships with important industry bodies such as Batseta, ASISA, SAVCA and others. He also sits on board as a member of the ASSA Investments Committee.

In 2017, he was chosen as one of the Mail and Guardian newspaper's Top 200 South Africans, and is a regular speaker at various events & conferences.

Further to this, Malizole is a lecturer in postgraduate and undergraduate actuarial science studies, and he also serves as a researcher in the profession. He mentors a number of actuarial students and individuals aspiring to be in the profession, both directly and indirectly.
